Dedicated: To all buyers

Rachel is dying in childbed.

Jakob: "He is son of the rightful - and his name shall be Ben-Jamin (Son of Joy)".

Rachel: "No - I know better.
Ben-Oni is the name of the new-born".

The name Ben-Oni was an allusion to the town On in Egypt, the town where Osiris
reigned - Osiris,
Lord of the Dead.

And to the emotional mind Ben-Oni equalled
"Son of Death".

(With apologies to Thomas Mann: "Josef and his Brothers", 1933, and to the Old Testament).

This is not a grammar, nor a bible, nor a collection of arbitrary benoni rules - it is a systematization of the polychromatic ideas inside the Modern Benoni Complex - bringing things so far as 1.11.1972 + various games from the period 1.11.72-1.2.73.

This survey is intended to represent a synthesis of the material contained in the bibliography, p.402.

It is also an attempt to group a "family" of variations according to the conception of the local majorities as the commanding power in connection with a static construction of the center - as worked out by H.Kmoch in "Pawn Power in Chess" (9).

Evaluation of positions are "copied" from existing "authoritative" sources - if such exist. Otherwise the sign ø is normally used.

"Whenever I felt in a sorrowful mood and wanted to take refuge from melancholy, I sat over a chessboard, for one or two hours according to circumstances. Thus this book came into being, and its name, Ben-Oni, "Son of Sadness", should indicate its origin".

(Part of Aaron Reinganum's preface in his "Ben-Oni, oder die Ver-theidigungen gegen die Gambitzüge im Schache", Frankfurt am Main, 1825, as translated by Dr.E.Gelenczei in his "The Benoni Defence", BCM No.12, 1966).

Reinganum's own word is "Sohn meines Unmuth", which also might be translated to "Son of Sorrow".

DISCUSSION OF BENONI PAWN STRUCTURES

Few opening systems (complexes) show a distinct and mature pawn structure within the opening phase. Mature should be taken in the sense of "stabilized center". Mostly the pawn formations are immature during the greatest part of the middle game, and in some opening systems the structure is fluctuating even in the endgame.

An earmark of MBO is that the center is stabilized within c. 5 moves (apart from transpositional sequences from various Indian Lines and Flank Openings), and this stabilization is due to the creation of the specific pawn couple d5 v. d6, giving the center a static nature.

In many hand-books on chess you may read that "the days are gone when general principles on development and pawn play are sufficient arsenal for the tournament player".

Any opening system has its own inherent "logic", i.e. a basic pattern for planning, and only an intimate knowledge of this logic enables a player to formulate the correct plan.

In his excellent book "Pawn Power in Chess" (9) Hans Kmoch has given a scheme for distinguishing between the different benoni formations:

1) Full Benoni

Major :	c4+d5+e4	v.	c5+d6+e5
Minor :	c2+d5+e4	v.	c5+d6+e5
Spanish :	c3+d5+e4	v.	a6+b5+c5+d6+e5

2) Part Benoni

Blitz :	d5+e4	v.	c5+d6 (MBO)!!
Wing :	c4+d5	v.	c5+d6+e7
Gambit :	a2+b2+ d5+e4	v.	c5+d6+e7
Rex :	d5	v.	c7+d6+e5

It would be convenient to have all benoni games classified in accordance with this scheme. Retrieval of information on a specific structure would be much easier.

The "Benoni Major" and the "Benoni Minor" differ by the square c4 which in the latter formation is open offering White's pieces more scope (see Nimzowitsch Pirouette, p.96). Therefore, Black usually avoids the "Benoni Minor" (1.d4 c5 2.d5) playing c5 only in answer to c4. Thus 1.d4 Nf6 2.c4 c5.

The "Spanish Benoni" is a version of the "Benoni Minor" improved on Black's part through control of the square c5.

The "Blitz Benoni" is a half-closed formation with sharp tendencies owing to opposite majorities (The remainder of this book is dedicated to these majorities).

The "Wing Benoni" is designed to put White's Q-wing under converging pressure. Black therefore fianchettoes his K-Bishop and strives for the exchange of a pawn with b5.

The "Gambit Benoni", where Black sacrifices a pawn with b5, constitutes an effort on his part to intensify the tendencies of the "Wing Benoni".

The "Rex Benoni" differs from all other benoni formations by c7 (instead of c5). It is the most important of the part benonis. Our term "Rex" is intended to hint at the King's Indian Defence from which this formation usually arises.

All benoni formations favour White with regard to space, but Black with regard to levers (see p. ix).

White, who should strive for a duo with his d-pawn, has difficulty in forming proper levers, while Black constantly faces the danger of being either too early or too late with the exchange of a pawn. The struggle is usually very difficult for both sides.

Benoni formations, because of their intricacy and permanent tension, are the heavy guns in present-day tournament chess.

Any benoni formation may conceivably occur with colours reversed.

So far Hans Kmoch.

By now it should be clear that the subject of this study is the "Blitz Benoni Formation", normally referred to as the "Modern Benoni" - MBO.

The standard term "Modern" is based on a sort of ignorance: Reinganum's original idea was to answer 1.d4 with 1...c5.

Formations springing from these moves might therefore be called "Old Benoni" or "Classical Benoni" formations. Only later - in this century - it became fashionable to play c5 only in reaction to c4 (cf. Kmoch). Formations, encompassing the structure c4+d5 v. c5+d6 should therefore be called "Modern Benoni" formations. But the formation subjected to analysis in this study is only part of the "Modern Benoni" complex. So the actual structure should be given its own name, e.g. "Blitz Benoni" (Kmoch) or "Skew Benoni" (Zeuthen).

Finally it should be mentioned that Euwe (7) calls it "Tal-System", Pachman (8) calls it "Verbesserte Hromadka-System", the Russians (5,10,11,13) call all benoni formations "Staroindiskaja Zaschita" (which means "Old Indian Defence"), the English call it "Modern Benoni" etc.

Now - to make confusion complete - "Skew Benoni" is suggested.

- 1) The pawn couple d5 v. d6 forms the "Benoni Ram", in short the RAM.
 - 2) The pawn couple d5+e5 forms White's "Main Duo" (or "Head Duo").
 - 3) The pawn couple b5+c5 forms Black's "Main Duo" (or "Head Duo"). Here "Duo" means the same as "Phalanx".
 - 4) The square e5 is called "Stopsquare for White's Benoni Majority", in short WSS (White Stop Square).
 - 5) The square b5 is called "Stopsquare for Black's Benoni Majority", in short BSS (Black Stop Square).
 - 6) The square c4 is called "Modern Benoni Square", in short MBS.
 - 7) The diagonal a1-h8 is called "Modern Benoni Diagonal", in short MBD.
 - 8) "Monochromy" is a disease. Monochromy utters itself in two ways:
 - a) "Melanpenia", meaning insufficient control of the black squares.
 - b) "Leucopenia", meaning insufficient control of the white squares.This disease may be mechanical or dynamical, i.e. of lasting nature or of temporary nature. It is easily understood that mechanical monochromy is much more serious than dynamical monochromy.
 - 9) "Melan-sacrifice", a sacrifice intended to inflict "Melanpenia" in the opponent's camp.
 - 10) "Leuco-sacrifice", a sacrifice intended to inflict "Leucopenia" in the opponent's camp.
 - 11) "Rotochromy", a virtue. Rotochromy means the ability of attacking squares of different colour. A Bishop is born monochrome, a Night is born rotochrome.
 - 12) "Sealer-Sweeper". A "Sealer" is an immobilized pawn, which only hampers its own pieces. A dynamically immobilized pawn may self-sacrificially advance, thus vacating its square for the benefit of its pieces. We then call it a "Sweeper" (cf. Kmoch, 9). In the "Sealing-Sweeping Line" (2S-Line), p.198, White's e-pawn acts as a sweeper, justifying the latter half of the name, while Black's d-pawn acts as a sealer. That is, the elements of sealing and sweeping are often parts of the same action, for if the sacrificed pawn is captured by a pawn, the latter often seals off a square to the detriment of its own pieces. In the "Sealing-Sweeping Line" the e-file and the a1-h8 diagonal are sealed off.

DISCUSSION OF MBO-STRUCTURE

The outstanding feature of the MBO pawn formation is the existence of local majorities.

White has 4 pawns against 3 on the K-side, while Black has 4 pawns against 3 on the Q-side. Utilization of these majorities constitutes the basic aim for both players.

The ram acts as a dead-point in the center and as an axis for pawn operations. Mostly White strives to dissolve this axis - the ram - in order to exploit his advantage in space in the center, i.e. to make the d-pawn mobile.

The manoeuvre e2-e4-e5 establishes White's main-duo and activates his majority. Normally the head-duo becomes feasible only after the preparatory f2-f4, and thus White's f-pawn acts as a helper. Black's f-pawn could be placed at f6 in order to frustrate e4-e5. In practical play this is only seldom seen (emergency cases) owing to the resulting weakness of Black's K-wing. Exchange of f7 v. f2 creates plain backwardness of White's e-pawn and should normally be avoided by White. Exchange of d6 v. f2 would give White a crushing pawn-roller (main-duo) and should normally be allowed only in such cases where White will find it extremely arduous to maintain the duo-structure in the center (see e.g. Four Pawns Attack).

The manoeuvre b7-b5 establishes Black's main-duo and activates his majority. Normally the head-duo becomes feasible only after the preparatory a7-a6, and thus Black's a-pawn acts as a helper. In answer to a7-a6 White almost automatically plays a2-a4, thus increasing control of MBS and BSS, but simultaneously a hole (pocket) appears at b4.

Exchange of White's a-pawn v. Black's b-pawn creates plain backwardness of White's b-pawn and Black's a-pawn. An important consequence of this exchange is the creation of a focal point at b2 (intersection between b-file and MBD). This focal point has often been a source of constant worry for White.

The square c4 (MBS) has a special significance in MBO. White is able to plant a Night there through the Nimzowitsch Pirouette (Ngl-f3-d2-c4). This Night will exert pressure against d6 (ram-pawn) and also control e5 (WSS), thus supporting the establishing of White's main-duo (d5+e5).

So the struggle in the MBO-complex is broken down to a question of controlling WSS, BSS, and MBS (e5, b5, and c4) in order to mobilize respective majorities.
The struggle takes an anti-clock-wise movement, cf.diagram.

SIGNS AND SYMBOLS

1 Pieces:

2 Signs of evaluation of position:

- + - (-+) : White (Black) is clearly on top.
- + = (=+) : White (Black) is supposed to enjoy a slight initiative.
- = : The position is supposed to be in equilibrium.
- ∅ : Unclear position. Evaluation a question of style.
- ∅ = (=∅) : White (Black) is supposed to have compensation for his deficit in material.

3 Games (examples):

In "Section of Theory" the examples are given as follows:

(NAME-NAME, Tournament, Year. Result - No. in "Section of Games"), e.g:
(TUKMAKOV-TAL, 39.USSR Ch., 1971. B - 663).

where B = "Black won", W = "White won", and D = "Drawn".
If no No. is given, then the total game cannot be found in "Section of Games".

NB!: All signs for "check" and taking of pieces are omitted in text.

4 Diagrams:

In principle diagrams are given whenever a "choice" exists (choice according to current theory).

Bold numbers on right-hand pages in "Section of Theory" refer to diagrams on the corresponding left-hand page.

W ↔ B on diagrams indicates "White to move" or "Black to move".

5 Abbreviations:

- ∅ : Intending to, in order to, with the idea, if ... then ... etc.
- : Transposes to, leads to, etc.
- Ch. : Championship.
- Corr. : Correspondence.
- (No.) : Refer to number in bibliography, p.402.

MODERN BENONI SYSTEMS

The main features of the modern benoni formation are the local majorities, the ram, the benoni square c4 (MBS), and the respective stopsquares (e5=WSS, b5=BSS).

In accordance with Kmoch's remarks (p.iv) White (the attacker) should strive for the dissolution of the ram by means of the duo-lever action e2-e4-e5 (lever = load and tension).

It should be mentioned, however, that the dissolution (disintegration) of the ram not necessarily is good for White. The question is of course at what price the dissolution is obtained.

The various systems at White's disposal may now be distinguished as follows:

A: PAWN STORM SYSTEMS

White tries to dissolve the ram immediately by means of the duo-lever e2-e4-e5, prepared by the helper f2-f4.

The struggle normally takes a purely tactical direction - heavy positional manoeuvering is abandoned.

| Chapter I : Mikenas Line (Mikenas Gambit) | p.8 |
| - II : Taimanov Line | p.18 |
| - III: Four Pawns Attack | p.38 |

B: PIECE PRESSURE SYSTEMS

White brings piece pressure to bear against d6, striving to tie Black down in a passive, defensive position. After that the duo-lever manoeuver is carried out.

The struggle normally takes a tactical-positional direction.

- | | |
|------------------------------------|-------|
| Chapter IV : Nimzowitsch Pirouette | p.96 |
| - V : Combined Lines | p.114 |

C: DELAYED SYSTEMS

White's main concern is to maintain his mighty (=vulnerable) pawn structure in the center (especially through over-protection of e4) and to prevent Black from establishing his main duo.

The main breaks (duo-lever actions) are normally postponed until mobilization is completed.

The struggle normally takes a positional direction.

| - VII: Sealing-Sweeping Line (2S-Line) | p.198 |
| - VIII: Uhlmann-Averbakh Line | p.222 |

It is typical of present-day chess practice, that C-systems are prevailing.

No doubt, A-systems need further investigation, and the material contained in the present survey should provide the background for additional study.

This is the most direct attempt to take advantage of the pawn structure.

In a way Black's position looks critical, but he has sufficient counterplay owing to his better development.

The thrust 8.e5 was introduced and analysed by the Lithuanian Master Mikenas around 1960, but it has never gained real popularity. Somehow this is strange since White's chances in this line in no way seem inferior to those in other lines inside the "Pawn Storm System". The lack of popularity also accounts for the lack of documentary material. The psychological explanation might be that players who open with 1.d4 dislike the "Wild West" positions arising from this direct push in the center.
"If anything, theory favours Black, while practice shows White to be more successful" (1).

After 8.e5 Black has 2 basic possibilities:

A: 8...de (Close to suicide, since the center is blown away at a moment when Black's pieces are awkwardly placed).

B: 8...Nfd7 (Salvation), p.12.

8. Nfd7 (21)

Generally acknowledged as the best choice. Black avoids the total liquidation of the center.

9. Nb5!?

The idea behind White's previous move.

Black cannot defend d6 - his ram pawn - in any satisfactory way. Judging, however, from the examples given below Black need not be frightened from the N's sally. It consumes time.

Alternatives (from dia.no.21):

- 1) 9.ed is not dangerous, viz: 9...o-o 10.Nf3 (22):
 - a) 10...Nf6 (23):

 - b) 10...a6 11.Be2 Nf6 12.Ne5 (MIKENAS-MIKKOV, Pjarnü, 1956) with equality (SB 1958).
 - 2) 9.Ne4 is actually the same as the text move, since it transposes after the logical sequence 9...de 10.Nd6.
 - 3) 9.e6 (24). This obvious move is treated neither by Hartston (1), nor by Boleslavskij (6), nor by Euwe (7). This is odd since the thrust demands extremely exact play on Black's part. Only Judovich (5) mentions the possibility. Some examples:
 - a) 9...fe 10.de (25):
 - al) 10...Nf6 11.Bc4 Nc6 12.Nf3 a6 13.Ng5 Qe7 14.o-o o-o 15. f5 Ne5 16.Nd5! += (NEIKIRCH-GOLZ, DDR Ch., 1963. W - 12). Black was crushed on the K-side.
 - a2) 10...Nb6 is best, according to Judovich. His opinion is based on MILEIKA-ELKON (Riga, 1959): 11.Ne4 o-o 12.Qd6 Qd6 13.Nd6 Be6 14.Nb7 Na4 15.Nf3 Nd7 16.Bb5 Nb2 17.Rb1 Rb8 =
 - b) 9...Nf6 10.Bb5 Kf8 (26):

These examples after 9.e6 should not prove sufficient to refute the MBO, but further analysis is urgent.

9.
10. Nd6 (27) de
Ke7! (28)

If Black gets nervous he will be slaughtered. It is necessary to force the intruder to take a decision immediately.

Tucking the K away on the first rank creates a traffic-jam in Black's camp, viz: (from dia.no. 27)

10...Kf8? (29):

1) 11.Nc8?! Qc8 12.Nf3 e4 13.Ng5 Nf6 14.Qc2 h6 15.Nh3 Nd5 16.Qe4 Qe8 17.Qe8 Ke8 18.Bc4 Nb4 = (MINEV-VL.POPOV, Bulgarian Ch., 1963. W - 15). White's piece pressure outweighed his pawn deficit, and his pair of Bishops proved decisive after inconsequent play on Black's part.

2) 11.Nf3! (30):

- a) 11...ef 12.Bf4 Nf6 13.Bc4 Qe7 14.Ne5! Bg4 15.Qb3 Nfd7 16.o-o +- (MOHRING-JUTTLER, corr., 1963).

11. Nc8

Alternatives (from dia.no.28):

1) 11Nb5!? (31):

- a) 11...Re8! (Black utilizes the breathing pause to get his KR into play) 12.d6 Kf8 13.Nc7 ef 14.Ne8 Qh4 15.Kd2 (15.g3 fg 16.Nf3 g2 φ) 15...Ke8 16.Qel Qel 17.Kel Be5 =φ (Hartston, 1).

2) 11.fe. This seems to be more dangerous for White. Anyway, nobody has repeated the experiment after KAVALEK-TRAPL (Czechoslovakian Ch., 1963): 11...Ne5 12.Nc8 Qc8 13.d6 Kf8 14.Nf3 Qe6 15.Ne5 Be5 16.Be2 Kg7 17.o-o Nc6 18.Bg4 Qd6 (18...f5, Euwe) 19.Qb3 Qc7?? A little-explored track is 14...e4!? 15.Ng5 h6 16.Ne4 Bd4 = (35)
(Suetin, CI XI). White's K may find the situation somewhat precarious.

15. fe Nde5
16. o-o (36)

White's pair of Bishops and passed d-pawn should be ample compensation for his slight deficit, but Black has counterplay, e.g.: 16...Nf3 17.Bf3 Bd4 18.Kh1 Kg7 19.Bd5 (37):

- 1) 19...f6? 20.Qb3 Rb8 21.Bc6 Qd8 22.Bf4 Ne5? (22...Be5) 23.Qd5 Rf8 24.Rad1 Qb6 25.Rd4!, and White's central play grew too strong (ZILBERBERG-TANIN, corr., 1967. W - 2o).
 - 2) 19...Rf8 20.Bf4 Qd8 21.Qb3 g5 22.Bg3 Qb6 23.Qf3 f5 24.Rael f4 ♂ (GIPSLIS-L.GRIGORJAN, 1/2 32.USSR Ch., 1964. D - 21).
- The position clarified into a roughly balanced 2R-ending.

Albeit Black normally emerges from the gun smoke in the opening phase with a pawn to the good he must be on the alert to hold his own. In his camp discord is not far away, and a single slip enables White to penetrate.

Mikenas Line deserves further tests and provides a good weapon in the hands of an experienced attacking player.
The extremely tactical tendency of this line should be noticed. No other line inside the MBO-complex displays the equivalent lack of heavy positional manoeuvering.

TAIMANOV LINE

1.d4 Nf6 2.c4 c5 3.d5 e6 4.Nc3 ed 5.cd d6 6.e4 g6 7.f4 Bg7 8.Bb5

See diagram no.38

One of the most popular lines for White inside the "Pawn Storm System".

The basic idea is to create discord in Black's camp, i.e. to render Black's normal development difficult, and then transpose to patterns from the "Four Pawns Attack".

This line demands exact play on Black's part lest he will find himself in dire straits when the center is opened by the duo-lever e5.

Probably Black has only one satisfactory answer to the unpleasant Bishop check (8...Nfd7), although the rigorous dismissal of the alternatives was recently subjected to criticism by Ojanen and Keres (see alt.2 below).

8. Nfd7 (39)

The crucial alternatives are (from dia.no.38):

- 1) 8...Bd7?! 9.e5! Nh5 10.Nf3 (40):

 - all2) 12.o-o Bg4!. It is remarkable that this transposes to alt.2a, p.8 (Mikenas Line!).
 - a2) 11...Bb5 12.Nb5 o-o 13.o-o Qd7 14.Nc3 (14.Qe2!) 14...Qf5 15.Qa4 Be5 16.Ne5 Qe5 17.Bh6 += (O'KELLY-DIEZ=DEL=CORRAL, Madrid, 1957. W - 23). White had K-side pressure all the way, with Black suffering from melanpenia.
 - b) 10...o-o 11.Bd7 Nd7 12.g4 Nf4 13.Bf4 de 14.Bg5 f6 15.Bh4 +- (SAKHAROV-POLJAK, "Avangard" Ch., USSR, 1958. W - 24).
 - 2) 8...Nbd7 (44). This loses a piece for Black. However, an article by Keres (SA, April 1971) indicates that there still are a lot of finesse to be found in variations dismissed by the theoreticians.

A summary of Keres' article is given in Appendix I, p.368. In return for the piece, Black gets a substantial lead in development.

9. Bd3 (45)

The idea is to prevent Black from establishing his main duo b5+c5; (9...a6 10.a4).

Alternatives (from dia.no.39):

- 1) 9.a4 (46). This prevents a6+b5 but makes gaps in the pawn structure:

- 3) 9.Be2 (56). Why not?
It is logical to keep the d-file clear in order to protect the d-pawn once the duo lever e5 has been carried out. Simultaneously Black's tactical advance c4 will not occur with gain of tempo as is the case in text (9.Bd3).
The only disadvantage of 9.Be2 in comparison with 9.Bd3 consists in the former's not protecting e4. But in this Taimanov Line the pressure against e4 is not imminent (because of 8...Nfd7). Hence White is able to manoeuvre more freely.
An interesting idea for Black after 9.Be2 is 9...Qh4 10.g3 Qe7, similar to Lutikov-Vasjukov above and Portisch's suggestion in "Combined Lines", p.128. See also alt.1 below.
No book on the MBO mentions the idea 9.Be2, so there is certainly scope for analysis.

9.

o-o (57)

- The natural move - but probably not the strongest.
Less hackneyed tries are (from dia.no.45):
- 1) 9...Qh4!? (58). Probably a very good idea. Black inflicts leucopenia in White's K-flank.
- a) 10.Kf1! Na6 11.Nf3 Qd8 12.Kf2 Qb6 13.Kg3 \emptyset (THOMSON-PORTISCH, Adelaide, USA, 1971. B - 38). According to Fridstein (SvSSR 1971) White should not exchange Queens (Move no.16). The semi-open b-file gives Black fair chances.

- 1) 11.Qe2! Nf6 12.o-o Re8 13.e5! Nbd7 14.Bc4 de 15.fe Ng4 16. Bg5 f6 17.d6 Kh8 18.e6, and the rest was simply massacre (A.ZAITSEV-DZHINDZHIHASHIVILI, Leningrad, 1962. W - 47). An outstanding example of how one should not treat this system with the black pieces.
- 2) 11.o-o (Too slow) 11...Ba6(!) (66):
- 12.a4 (67):
 - 12...c4 13.Bc2 Nc5 14.Be3 Re8 15.Bd4 Nbd7 16.Bg7 Kg7 17.Nd4 Rc8 18.Nc6 Qc7 Ø (FRIDSTEIN-PROKHOROVICH, Moscow Ch., 1958. W - 48). The significance of the resulting weakness of the square d4 after c4 should be noticed.
 - 12...Bd3 13.Qd3 a6 Ø 14.f5 Ne5 15.Ne5 Be5, and Black holds his own by bringing Ra8 into play, or 14.Nd2 Bd4 15.Kh1 Nf6, and White has difficulties in defending his e-pawn (Boleslavskij, 10).
 - 12.f5 c4 13.Bc2 b5 14.a3 Ne5 15.Kh1 Nf3 16.gf Nd7 17.Rg1 Re8 Ø (PROKHOROVICH-VOLOVICH, Moscow, 1958. D - 49). Exchanges in the center (e-file) led to a drawish ending.
- D: 10...b5?! 11.Bb5 Qa5 12.o-o Bc3 13.Bd7 Nd7 14.bc Ba6 += (VAISMAN-BERESCHNOJ, 1/2 Ukrainian Ch., 1959. W - 50). Black went astray in a seemingly lost position, the melanpenia in his K-side being beyond cure.

Na6 (69)

Black might be over-reaching himself.

11. o-o (70)

Nc7 (71)

The logical move, preparing for duo action by b5.

Other possibilities (from dia.no.70):

1) 11...Nf6 (Questioned by Boleslavskij in (lo)) 12.Qe1 Nc7 13.a4 a6 14.Bd2 b6 15.Rd1 Rb8 16.e5 Nfd5 17.Ne4 (GULKO-ZVETKOVIC, USSR v. Yugoslavia, 1966. D - 52). According to Boleslavskij White has a strong attack. In the middle game Black gave up the exchange in return for 3P and experienced little difficulty in drawing the game.

2) 11...Re8 (72):

a) 12.Nd2 (73):

al) 12...Nb4 (Seems to be loss of time) 13.Bb1 Nf6 14.a3 Na6 15.Nc4 (15.h3! +=, Taimanov) 15...Ng4 16.Qe1 Nc7 (16... f5 17.h3 Nf6 18.e5 de 19.fe Nd5 20.Nd5 Qd5 21.Ba2!) 17. h3 b5 (SHAMKOVICH-SUETIN, Kharkov, USSR, 1956). Now White could obtain the upper hand playing 18.Nd6, e.g. 18...Qd6 19.hg Bg4 20.Qg3 h5 21.e5 Qd8 22.d6 or 18...Bd4 19.Kh1 Nf2 20.Rf2 Bf2 21.Qf2 Qd6 22.e5 (Boleslavskij, lo).

a3) 12...Nc7 13.Nc4 Nb6 14.Na5 Bd4 15.Kh1 Qh4 16.Bd2 Bg4 φ (TAL-CONTEDINI, 14.Ol., Leipzig, 1960. W - 54). Black was aggressive in the wrong sector.

b) 12.Kh1 (74):

bl) 12...Nc7 13.Qc2 a6 14.a4 b6 15.Bd2 Rb8 16.Bel b5 φ (BRANDT-BROWNE, US Open, 1967. B - 55). Black's middle game sacrifice is not clear. (26.ef?). As played, White gets an off-side N.

b2) 12...Nb4 13.Be2 b6 14.Nd2 Nf6 15.a3 Na6 16.Bf3 Nc7 17.e5 de 18.fe Nfd5 19.Nd5 Nd5 20.Nc4 Be6 21.Nd6 φ (BUTNORJUS-ALBURT, USSR, 1971. B - 56). White's break 17.e5 was too hasty.

c) 12.Rel Nc7 13.a4 a6 14.e5 de 15.d6 Ne6 16.fe Nd4 17.Nd4 cd 18.Nd5 φ (UZAZHIJ-SUETIN, Kiev Ch., 1958. B - 57). White's center crumbled.

4) 11...Rb8?!. (75):

a) 12.Nd2 b5! (φ 13.Nb5 c4!, Hartston).

b) 12.Kh1 (76):

- b2) 12...Nc7 13.a4 a6 14.f5!? (An original idea - see also Prokhorovich-Volovich, p.26 . 14.a5 → Gastonyi-Forintos, p.30) 14...b5 15.ab Nb5 16.Bg5 f6(?) 17.Bf4 Ne5 += (SPASSKIJ-SAVON, Alekhin Mem. Tourn., 1971. W - 60). 16...f6 seems fatal. 16...Qc7 or 16...Qe8 should be tried. Black could not utilize the hole at e5, and in the end the weakness of his g-pawn proved decisive.

12. Nd2 (77)

Starting the Nimzowitsch Pirouette.

Alternatives (from dia.no.71):

- 1) 12.Qc2 Rb8 13.b3 b5 14.Bb2. According to Hartston an "insipid plan. In ALSTER-CLARKE (Wageningen, 1957. W - 61) Black now forced the game into a drawn ending with 14...c4 15.bc bc 16. Bc4 Nd5! 17.Bd5 Qb6 18.Rf2 Qb2 etc." But White has slightly better prospects due to the isolation of Black's ram pawn (d6). Black might fare better with more traditional moves.
- 2) 12.Kh1! a6 13.a4 Rb8 (78):
 - a) 14.a5 (79):
 - 1) 14...b6 15.ab Rb6 16.Nd2 Nf6 17.Qf3 Nb5 18.Nc4 Nd4 19. Qf2 Rb4 φ (GASTONYI-FORINTOS, Asztaloz Mem. Tourn., 1965. W - 62). Black's major fault consists in Nb8-a6-c7-b5-d4-b3-cl, i.e. a 6-tempo manoeuvre to remove White's undeveloped QB. That must be too high a price to pay for inflicting melanpenia in White's lines.
 - a2) 14...Re8 15.Qe2 Nf6 16.Qc2 Bd7 17.e5 += (ANTOSCHIN-BIALAS, Hamburg, 1960).
 - b) 14.Qe2! Re8 15.Qf2 b5 16.e5 c4 17.Bc2 Nc5 18.ab Nb5 19.Nb5 Rb5 20.Nd4 Rb7 φ (SHAMKOVICH-LEIN, "RSFSR" Ch., USSR, 1957. W - 63). This set-up with 12.Kh1+14.Qe2 seems to be crucial for the Nb8-a6-c7 set-up. White's central play appears much stronger than Black's Q-side operations.
 - c) 14.Bc4 Nf6 15.e5 Nfe8 16.Qe2 b5 17.ab ab 18.Nb5 Nb5 19.Bb5 Nc7 =φ (SLIWA-FORINTOS, 16.Ol., Tel Aviv, 1964. B - 64). Black obtained pressure on the Q-side, and White omitted to take adequate counter measures in the center and/or on the K-side.

14. a4! (81)

But not 14.Qf3? (82):

- 1) 14...Rb8? 15.a4! += (TAIMANOV-TRIFUNOVIC, USSR v. Yugoslavia, 1957. W - 67). Black never obtained serious counterplay and was demolished in the center and on the K-side.
- 2) 14...Nfd5! 15.ed Bd4 16.Kh1 Re3 (Hartston, 1). Black is a pawn up but the position is extremely unclear.

The position after 14.a4 is in White's favour. Black will have an uphill struggle for a long time to come. Consequently Black should try 12...Rb8(!) with fair chances in practical play.

In the position on diagram no.84 White will find it difficult to establish his main duo owing to the resulting weakness of his d-pawn (See comment p.22 , alt.3).

If Black has no desire of entering this type of "Four Pawns Attack" a tempo down he may try (from diagram no.83):

- 1) 11...Qa5? 12.Bd2 Qb6 13.a5 Qc7 +- (PIMONOV-JUDKEVICH, USSR, 1971. W - 68). Not to be recommended.

- 3) 11...Qc7 (85) (Probably the best choice if Black wants to justify the position of Nd7):
 - a) 12.Nd2 c4? 13.Nc4 Nc5 14.o-o Bg4 15.Qc2 Nd3 16.Qd3 Nd7 17.h3 Nc5 18.Qc2 Bd7 19.a5 ø (FINK-KOBLENZ, corr., 1959). Now 19... Bc3 20.bc Bb5 leads to an unclear position.

 - c) 12.o-o c4 13.Bc2 Nc5 14.Be3 Bg4 15.Bd4 Bf3 16.Rf3 Bd4 17.Qd4 Nbd7 = (MARSALEK-FORINTOS, Leningrad, 1960).

Alternatives 1-4 are not satisfactory for Black.

CHAPTER III

FOUR PAWNS ATTACK

See diagram no.89

This is the basic position for the "Four Pawns Attack". (Strictly speaking it should be called "Three Pawns Attack", but the word "Four" is firmly established in chess theory).

The main characteristics of the position are:

- I) White is ready for the duo-lever e5, but normally postpones this break until mobilization is completed and the K tucked away.
- II) Black is ahead in development and is ready for piling up pressure against White's vulnerable pawn structure in the center.
- III) White's center deserves respect, but should arise no anxiety. People disliking positions of this type are advised to play a "Benoni Major" set-up (see p. iii).

In the basic position (dia.no. 89) Black has a choice between a galaxy of continuations, viz:

p.40 A: 9...Re8 (Ø prophylactic play in the e-file).

p.74 B: 9... b5 (Ø to establish the head duo, hoping to take advantage of the slightly precarious position of WK in the ensuing complications. The move also represents an attempt to shift the center of gravity to the Q-side).

p.82 C: 9...Bg4 (Ø to exchange the benoni N, lessening the force of the duo-lever e5).

p.86 D: 9... b6 (Ø to exchange the white-squared Bs, diminishing White's control of the diagonal f1-a6, in particular the squares c4 and b5).

p.88 E: 9...Na6 (Ø Na6-c7, i.e. to prepare for b5, simultaneously piling up pressure against d5 and rendering e5 more laborious to achieve).

p.90 F: 9...a6 (Ø to prepare for b5 and to prevent Nb5-sallies).

G: 9...Nbd7 is hardly advisable, eg: 10.e5! de 11.fe Ng4 12.e6 Nde5 13.Ng5 c4 14.o-o (14.Bg4 Nd3 15.Ke2 fe 16.Bf3 ed 17.Bd5 Kh8 18.Rf1 Bg4 19.Bf3 Bc3 ++, I.Zaitsev) 14...Qb6 15.Kh1 Nf2 16.Rf2 Qf2 17.Nge4 += (KNESEVIC-I.ZAITSEV, Smederevska Palanka, 1971. D - 75). Fireworks. A game full of tension and mutual faults.

Not all of the variations A-F are independent. Especially E and F have a tendency of transposing to patterns akin to A.

The only way of protecting e4.
It is surely White's most solid (reliable) method and gives raise to interesting play.

A21: 10... c4 p.44
A22: 10... a6 p.48
A23: 10... b6 p.52

It should be mentioned that Hartston considers A24 in his "Benoni" (1), while A21+A22+A23 are treated in "King's Indian Defence" (2). Such division is hardly logical in as much as it should be the pawn skeleton to decide the positioning of the idea inside an opening complex (in casu "Indian Defence"), not an empirical classification.

From diagram no. 96 :

- 1) 16...Bd7 17.b3 Qc7 18.Qe3 a6 += (PADEVSKY-CIOCALTEA, 17.01., Havanna, 1966. D - 82). White's melanpenia enabled Black to escape.

The loosening of the pawn structure by c4 is somewhat suspicious. Also the lack of control of e5 tells heavily against Black.

If the idea of c4 is to be justified then only Boleslavskij's 16...Bg4 holds out promise.

The mistletoe 13.e5 must be taken into account.

12. Bg5

White's usual choice.

However, in view of the evaluation after White's 18th move (text) it would be reasonable to take a closer look at the alternatives at White's disposal (from dia.no. 164):

 - a) 13...Bb7 14.Bf4 Nf3?! (14...Nbd7! =) 15.Rf3 Bd4 16.Khl += (BARCZAY-VARNUSZ, Hungarian Ch., 1963. W - 151). Black sacrificed 2 minor pieces for a R to cope with White's 2B - but his open K-position was too heavy a burden.

These 2 games arose via 9.Bd3, but this fact is of no significance after 12.Bb5. Also Belinkov-Zhernov, p. 74, took this course.
- 4) 12.Bf4 (Keres' idea) (167):

Perhaps Black fares best by leaving his R at f8 in answer to Be7 and opt for utilization of the melanpenia tendencies in White's camp after an eventual Bf8.

If Black plays Re8 after Be7 then White's pressure in the f-file - in connection with Be7 - proves extremely unpleasant.

This display of vigour is well-timed.

One gets the impression that Black cannot allow himself to carry out the complicated Q-side operations (Nb8-a6-c7), but has to content himself with prophylactic play in the central region, i.e. he has to stem the tide!

NIMZOWITZSCH PIROUETTE

See diagram no.211

Hartston (1) calls this line "Night's Tour Attack" - and that is a very descriptive label.

This line shows the manoeuvre Ngl-f3-d2-c4 (Nimzowitsch Pirouette) in its purest form, and since Nimzowitsch found this pirouette in the basic game Nimzowitsch-Marshall (New York, 1927) it seems reasonable to pay respect to the inventor by letting the line have his name.

214

The position on diagram no.211 is the key position in this line. The benoni N is on its way to c4 with pressure against e5,d6, and b6. Naturally the pressure against d6 is of paramount importance, and the pressure can be increased by Bf4 and Nb5. It should, however, become clear from the subsequent analysis and examples that Black has sufficient resources to meet the direct tactical threats.

If Black does not want to indulge in the complications in the fight for the ram pawn at d6 he may side-step with 6...Be7 (212), protecting d6 and saving a tempo (in comparison with g6+Bg7). Most theoreticians consider this set-up too passive. But the pirouette consumes tempi. Black may allow himself manoeuvres such as Nf6-any to be followed by Bf6 with well-known prophylactic play against e5. The main drawback of the Be7-idea is that White is in no way forced to complete the pirouette immediately, but may opt for positions akin to "Solid Line"; such policy seems to create discord in Black's camp and has consequently been White's major choice.

Some examples of this "Timid Benoni" (from dia.no.212):

- 1) 7.e4 o-o 8.Be2 (213):
 - a) 8...Re8 9.Bf4 Bg4 10.o-o Bf8? (10...Bf3!, SB 1961) 11.Nd2 Be2 12.Qe2 += (MAKOGONOV-SPASSKIJ, USSR Team Ch., 1960. B - 196). White's K-side attack developed too slowly, and Black's Q-side initiative spread to the center.
 - b) 8...Ne8 9.o-o Bf6 10.Be3 Nd7 11.Nd2 Qe7 12.Rel Nc7 φ (OSNOS-SPASSKIJ, Leningrad, 1956. W - 197). Obviously Pe4 was poisoned.
 - c) 8...Na6 9.o-o Nc7 (214):
 - c1) 10.a3! (Good idea when Black has not fianchettoed his KB) 10...Rfe8 11.Qc2 Bg4 12.b4 += (FURMAN-OSNOS, 31.USSR Ch., 1963. W - 198). An uphill struggle for Black all the way.
 - c2) 10.Rel Rb8 11.a4 a6 12.a5 Nd7 13.Bf4 f6 += (LOKVENC-LEINVEBER, Vienna, 1960. W - 199). Passive play by Black accelerated his downfall. Be7 was no jewel.
 - 2) 7.Nd2 o-o 8.Nc4 Ne8 9.Bf4 Bf6 10.e3 Nd7 = (KOTOV-TOLUSH, 1/2 24. USSR Ch., 1956. B - 200). White went for a piece attack against Black's K-side but obtained nothing whatsoever. This game indicates the necessity of utilizing the pawn majority for attacking purposes.

The over-all impression from these examples is that pirouette completed 2) gives Black an excellent game, while 1) leaves Black facing the problem of how to establish prophylactic play in the e-file without leaving White a free hand on the Q-side. One might conclude this digression by stating that players fearing the complications around the defence of the ram pawn (d6) are well advised to choose a "Benoni Major" set-up (p. iii).

After 9...h6 10.Bh4 (227) the following examples are known:

- 1) 10...a6 (Weak, Euwe) 11.a4 g5 12.Bg3 Ne8 13.e4 f5 14.ef Bf5 15. Be2 b6 16.o-o Rf7 17.Bg4 += (DONNER-LANGEWEG, Beverwijk, 1963).

- 3) 10...Qd7!? (Robatsch's suggestion after his game against van den Berg. Black unpins and prepares for b5) (228):
 - a) 11.Bg3 b5! 12.Nd6 Ba6 13.e3 b4 14.Na4 Bf1 15.Kf1 Na6 =∅ (LANGEWEG-VAN DEN BERG, Dutch Ch., 1963).
 - b) 11.a4:
 - b1) 11...Na6(!) ∅ Nb4+b6+Ba6 with fair practical chances, (Euwe).
 - b2) 11...Qg4(?) 12.Bf6 Qc4 (12...Bf6 13.Nd6) 13.Bg7 Kg7 14. e3 Qb4 15.Qd2 += (Euwe).
- 4) 10...b6 11.e3 Ba6 12.a4 Qe7 13.Nb5 Bb5 14.ab Nbd7 15.Be2 g5!? = (SZABO-PORTISCH, Hungarian Ch., 1959. D - 21o). Interesting middle game and R-ending.

It seems as if 3) and 4) give Black satisfactory play. An improvement for White might be 10.Bf4!? instead of 10.Bh4. After say 10... Ne8 11.Qd2 Kh7 White would virtually be a tempo up in comparison to the text. Salvation for Black might be found in manoeuvres such as 11...g5 + f7-f5-f4. This possibility can be found nowhere in the standard text books. But after 11...g5 12.Bg3 (229) Black's position reminds one of the weaker variations of the Uhlmann-Averbakh Line (i.e. where Black omits the exchange manoeuvre Nf6-h5-g3).

9. Ne8 (230)

9...Na6 is an interesting sacrifice, e.g.: 10.Bd6 Re8 11.Bg3 Ne4 12.Ne4 Re4 13.e3 b5 =∅ (ALEKSEJEV-DSCHAGAROV, "Trud", USSR, 1971. D - 211).

- a2) 12...Nd7 is weaker. The move was played in UUSI-VASJUKOV (Moscow, 1956) where Vasjukov introduced 10...g5!
- b) 12.Qd2 (235):

 - b) 12.a4 Bb5 13.ab Nd7 14.Bg2 Qe7 = (5, p.195).
- For a somewhat similar set-up, see Krasnov-Judovich jr., Fianchetto Line, introductory remarks, p.142.

After the text move 10.Qd2 (237) White threatens to play Nb5 or Ne4.

Black has a choice between:

A: 10...b6, p.106.

B: 10...Bc3, p.110.

C: 10...Nd7?! 11.Nd6 Ne5 12.Ne8 Nc4 13.Qd3 Nb2 14.Qc2 Re8 15.Qb2 b5 16.a3 b4 17.ab Re4 18.Bh6 Rb4 19.Qd2 Bf6 =φ (238) (JUDOVICH JR.-KOZLOV, Moscow, 1966. B - 213). Hartston (1) considers this sacrifice "exceedingly unsound", but suggests no improvements for White. Playing over the game one gets the opposite idea!

D: 10...a6? 11.a4 f5!? 12.a5! Qc7 13.Nb6 Ra7 14.e3 Nd7 += (239) (THORBERGSSON-HAMANN, Lidköping, Sweden, 1969. D - 214). This set-up with a R buried at a7 should not be recommended.

Bc3 (256)

This aggressive move stems from Tal - of course. Black parts with his pride - the powerhouse Bg7 - in order to activate his Q-side majority as quickly as possible. This results in a complicated position with "mutual" chances. In (6, 1972) Boleslavskij expresses little faith in this stratagem - but no outright refutation is known.

The standard method of recapture.

The promising diversion is (from dia.no. 256) 11.Qc3, e.g.:

No doubt - 11.Qc3 is a sound move, leaving d2 vacant for the benoni N.
- 2) 12...f5?! 13.h4 Qf6 14.Qg3 h5 15.o-o-o a5 16.e4 a4 17.e5 de 18. Be5 f4 += (HERNANDEZ-MALMGREN, 16.Students' Ol., Dresden, 1969. W - 222). The endgame was clearly in White's favour.

This is basically the same idea as in B1. White intends to create discord in Black's camp. The idea is probably weaker here than in B1 since White has no pressure against d6. Transposition to B1 and A may occur, as seen in alt.2.

Examples from diagram no.321:

- 1) 7...Nbd7(?) 8.Nge2 (322):

Probably Zagorjanskij should be canonized for being the first player to use the 2S-trick. It worked perfectly in this game - mainly due to Black's ignorance of what was in store for him.
 - b) 8...Bg7 9.a4 o-o 10.o-o a6 11.Bd3 Re8 12.Bg5 h6 13.Bf4 Qc7 Ø (VALGEIRSSON-BJORNSSON, Reykjavik Ch., 1962. W - 293). Black concentrated too much on the Q-side, and White took advantage of the airy structure on Black's K-side. This is basically a 2S-game (see p.198) with an extra tempo (Bf1-b5-d3) for Black (cf. alt.3, note to Black's 10th move, p.202).

CHAPTER VI FIANCHETTO LINE

1.d4 Nf6 2.c4 c5 3.d5 e6 4.Nc3 ed 5.cd d6 6.g3 g6 7.Bg2 Bg7

See diagram no.325

A bizarre mixture of "Nimzowitsch Pirouette" and "Fianchetto Line" is found in KRASNOV-JUDOVICH JR. (Zheboksary, USSR, 1960. B - 295): 7.Nf3 (instead of 7.Bg2) 7...Bg7 8.Nd2 o-o 9.Nc4 b6 10.Bf4 Ba6 11.Nd6 Nh5 12.Nde4 Nf4 13.gf Nd7 =∅. Apart from the method chosen by Black in this game standard methods (Chapter IV) are also sufficient.

In (7, p.64) Euwe states: "Fianchettoing the B gives a solid set-up which was very popular about 10 years ago. Today preference is given to a central development of Bf1 - more out of fashionable than objective reasons".

The first part of the statement is beyond dispute. The second is easily pulled to pieces: Bf1-g2 removes the B from the diagonal f1-a6 (including the squares c4 and b5, ie. MBS and BSS) and Bg2's future prospects depend entirely on a successful dissolution of the ram. An asset of Bg2 is the extra protection of d5 and e4. Further, it should be mentioned that Kmoch (9) considers the fianchetto structure illogical and that Korchnoi almost invariably employs it!

A plausible explanation of the frequency of the "Fianchetto Line" is the numerous transpositional possibilities from various Indian Lines and Flank Openings.

Anyway - Tartakower once said: "You need not fianchetto".

8. Nf3
.....

The natural move. The N keeps an eye on e5 and is ready for the pirouette.

Independent tracks (from dia.no. 325):

1) 8.Nh3(?) o-o 9.o-o Re8 10.Nf4 Bd7 11.a4 Na6 12.e4 Nb4 with a good game for Black (GOLOMBEK-STAHLBURG, Hamburg, 1955).

2) 8.e4 o-o 9.Nge2 (326):

a2) 10.a4 Na6 11.f3? Nb4 12.Be3 b6 13.Qd2 Ba6 14.o-o Nd7 =+ (DONNER-CZERNIAK, Venice, 1950).

 Clearly e4+Nge2 is a non-profit affair. Nge2 excludes the pirouette and White obtains no pressure against d6.

8. o-o

Strange play is seen in LUKIN-ARSENJEV (½ "Trud" Ch., USSR, 1965. B - 300): 8...Na6 9.Nd2 Nc7 10.Nc4? b5 11.Nd6 Qd6 12.Bf4 Qb6 13. o-o +- . You can also buy a pawn-roller too dearly.

9. o-o (334)

This is the basic position for the "Fianchetto Line". White has developed his pieces without compromising himself. His future plan of campaign consists in the pirouette + lever action in the center + restriction of Black's Q-side ambitions - or vice versa.

The bands of Black's spectrum for counterplay are the usual ones + a couple based on White's K-side structure, viz:

- p.146 A: 9.... a6 (Ø immediate attempt of duo action)
 p.172 B: 9....Qe7 (Ø prophylactic play in the e-file. Black also avoids weakening his Q-side prematurely).
 p.174 C: 9....Na6 (Ø Nc7 with pressure against b5 and d5. The pressure against d5 renders White's duo d5+e5 more difficult to achieve).
 p.184 D: 9....Nbd7 (Ø blockade of e5 - WSS).
 p.188 E: 9....Bg4 (Ø exchange the benoni N or Bg2. Simultaneously Black obtains more manoeuvering space in his back ranks).
 p.192 F: 9....Bf5 (Ø exchange Bg2).
 p.192 G: 9.... b6 (Ø Ba6, controlling c4).
 p.194 H: 9....Re8 (Ø prophylactic play in the e-file, i.e. same as B). p.196 I: 9....Bd7 (Ø duo action).

Today A,C,D, and H are the most popular in tournament practice. B still leaves room for thinking of your own - if that is your liking. Finally it should be noticed that transposition A-D-H is frequent, but to a great extent must be subjected to the reader's own analysis. Cross-connections, however, are given in a reasonable number.

- 2) 11.Qc2 Rb8 (341):
- 12.a5 b5 13.ab Rb6 14.Nd2 Ne8 15.Nc4 Rb4 16.Na5 Ne5 17.f4 Ng4 18.h3!? Bd4 19.Kh1 Nf2 φ (BJORNSSON-GARCIA, 16.01., Tel Aviv, 1964. W - 3o7). Black's toothless K-side gestures were quickly refuted.

 - 11.e4 Rb8 12.Rel Qc7 13.Bf1 (Not appetizing. 13.a5!?) 13...Re8 14.Nd2 Nh5 15.Be2 Nh6 φ (ZHEZHELJAN-SCHER, Kharkov, USSR, 1971. B - 3o9). Simultaneous pins in the e- and f-file made White's game untenable.
 - 11.Rb1!? (Suetin).

After 11.Nd2 (see dia.no.340) Black is at the parting of the ways. He may inaugurate Q-side play (11...Rb8 and 11...Qc7), prophylactic play in the e-file (11...Re8 and 11...Qe7), or start jockeying for position (11...Ne8). These ways often converge later.

- 2) 12...Nb6?? is a wrong track because of 13.Nd6! (345) Ø 13...Qd6 14.Bf4 with destruction in the offing. This simple tactical turn was not noticed by the white players in BORISSENKO-DERVIZ (Leningrad Ch., 1956. B - 311) and Mamkin-Zhaplinskij (given below), both games continuing 13.Na3. In the former game additional strange play by White forced poetic justice to take its toll, while innocence turned out to be a harmless digression in the latter, play transposing to normal patterns.

14. Nc7 (347)

14...Nd7 → A5, alt.3a, p.170.

∅ protect the ram pawn once more and to transfer the N to c7+b5. The basic idea is sound, of course, but the manoeuvre has something artificial about it. Examples (from dia.no.399):

Qe7 (403)

Prophylactic play starts right away. Instead of 9...Qe7 Black may play 9...Nbd7, transposing into the text after 10.Nd2 Qe7. According to Hartston (1) 9...Qe7 is Black's most solid choice inside the "Fianchetto Line". The main virtue of this move lies in the fact that it keeps White guessing a little longer. Black also avoids weakening his Q-side prematurely. In A Black had weakened his Q-side by a6 and was forced to remind himself of the possibility of a white N anchoring at b6, unnerving his entire Q-flank.

Other possibilities (from dia.no. 404):

 - a) 14.Nb5(?) Bb5 15.ab Nc7 16.Qb3 Nf6 17.Nbl Rfb8 18.Nc3 a6! =+ (DONNER-PETRO SJAN, Gothenberg Interzonal, 1955. B - 365). 14.Nb5 did not prevent Black from opening files on the Q-side and was consequently pointless.
 - b) 14.Nde4 Nc7 15.Bg5 f6 16.Bf4 φ (Euwe).
- 2) 11.a4 Ne5 12.f4 N5g4 13.Nc4 Ne8 14.e3 f5 15.h3 N4f6 16.Rel Bd7 φ (LILIENTHAL-SUETIN, 21.USSR Ch., 1954. W - 366). In a quite satisfactory position Black forgot about a simple tactical threat (36.Nc4).
- 3) 11.Rel Ne5 12.h3 Re8 13.Qc2 c4 14.Rf1?! Qc7 =+ (EALES-PRITCHETT, Groningen, 1970. D - 367). White was fortunate to escape.

13. a6 (406)

Or 13...Qe7, analogous to van Seters-Tan above.

407

W

But with no benoni N the text is perfectly playable since White has difficulties in exploiting the pocket at b6.

After 13...a6 (see dia.no. 406) Black had a comfortable position in GLIGORIC-PETRO SJAN (Neuhausen-Zurich, 1953. D - 368), cont.: 14.a5 Re8 15.Bf4 Qe7 16.Qb3 Nd7 (407) (+=, Euwe & Boleslavskij). It is hard to see that Black had any problems, and nobody has ever indicated where White failed in exploiting his postulated advantage (+=).

The variation (9...Qe7) has never gained real popularity and is consequently but sparcely documented. This is strange since Black's men work together very harmoniously.

C

1.d4 Nf6 2.c4 c5 3.d5 e6 4.Nc3 ed 5.cd d6 6.g3 g6 7.Bg2 Bg7 8.Nf3 o-o 9.o-o

9.

Na6 (408)

The philosophy behind this stratagem (indispensable in the Yugoslavian Variation of the King's Indian Defence) is twofold: To prepare for duo action (b5) and to pile up pressure against White's ram pawn at d5.

In principle nothing is wrong in this plan. In practice, however, certain drawbacks cannot be suppressed: First the manoeuvre consumes time (tempo), secondly Black's control of e5 (WSS) is diminished in comparison with A and B, and thirdly White's ram pawn is sufficiently defended by Bg2. In "Solid Line" (Chapter IX) the turning Nb8-a6-c7 is often a promising idea for Black, but here the negative factors add up to an extent of rendering the turning somewhat suspicious.

Now White has to make up his mind whether he intends to:

- p.178 C1: Start the pirouette (10.Nd2).
- p.182 C2: Restrict Black (10. h3).

Happy-go-lucky alternatives (from dia.no.408):

- 1) 10.e4? (Neglecting the square g4 gives Black an easy game) (409):
 - a) 10...Bg4 11.Rel Nc7 12.h3 Bf3 13.Qf3 Nd7 14.Qe2 Re8 15.Be3 a6 16.a4 Rb8 17.Qc2 b5 = (LETELIER-DARGA, Havanna, 1964).
 - b) 10...Nc7 11.a4 Bg4 12.h3 Bf3 13.Bf3 Nd7 = (CAIRNCROSS-SCHISCHOV, corr., Great Britain v. USSR, 1962. D - 369). Black experienced little trouble from White's K-side rustling.
- 2) 10.Nel Nc7 11.a4 Re8 12.Nc2 b6 13.Rel Rb8 14.h3 Nd7 15.Bd2 Qe7 16.Rbl = (KORCHNOI-SCHMID, Erevan, USSR, 1965. W - 37o). Korchnoi has the habit of winning this type of position. The dissolution of the ram was awkward for Black.

g5!? (445)

Natapov's idea. Black secures the square e5 for the Night.

One should not reject this idea of Natapov's because of Black's shortcoming in these examples. There are unclear spots in Black's strategy.

Furthermore it should be noticed that the idea of g5 is found in other variations inside the MBO-complex. Recently Fischer employed it in an important game against Gligoric (see p.366). Also Vasjukov, a benoni expert, has employed the stratagem (see Uusi-Vasjukov, p.104).

 - b2) 12.Kh2 b5 13.Qb3! a6 14.a4 b4 15.Nb1 Ø Nbl-d2-c4 += (Boleslavskij).
 - The examples and analysis in b show - amongst other things - that White may allow Black to play b5, i.e. establish his duo, if White in the sequence is able to play a4 and break the phalanx. After b4 there is a gaping hole at c4- MBS, and occupation of c4 by a white piece means the end of Black's Q-side dreams. But the game Rokhlin-Nyman shows that Black may find compensation on the K-side if White has stressed himself a little too much in that sector.
 - c) 11...Nfd7 12.Qc2 Ne5 13.Bg2 Na6 14.a3 Nc7 15.b3 b5 16.Bb2 Re8 = (SLUTSKIJ-RAZKOVSKIJ, "Spartakiad", USSR, 1962. B - 4o4). A pawn sacrifice gave Black's Q-side operations added momentum.

11. b5?! (456)

It may look odd to put a question mark against this basic move. The explanation is found in the comments in alt.lb, note to White's 10th move, text. 11...Na6 should be given a try.

12. a4! (457) b4

Abandoning all initiative in this sector. But it is too late to find something better.

CHAPTER VII SEALING-SWEEPING LINE (2S-line)

1.d4 Nf6 2.c4 c5 3.d5 e6 4.Nc3 ed 5.cd d6 6.e4 g6 7.Bd3 Bg7 8.Nge2

See diagram no. 473

A somewhat similar line is: 7.Nge2 Bg7 8.Ng3 o-o 9.Be2 (474):

- 1) 9...Na6 (475):
 - a) 10.Bg5 Nc7 11.Qd2 Re8 12.a4 Bd7 φ (BUKHMAN-SHASHIN, Lenin-grad Ch., 1971. D - 419). Not a typical game for the 2S-line, but crammed with interesting tactics.
 - b) 10.o-o Nc7 11.Bf4 Rb8 12.Qd2 b5 φ (SZABO-LJUBOJEVIC, IBM Tourn., Amsterdam, 1972. D - 420). A dull affair.
- 2) 9...a6 10.a4 Re8 11.Bf4 Qc7 12.Qd2 Nbd7 13.o-o b6 14.Bh6 Bh8 15.h3, Drawn (SZABO-PETRO SJAN, Sarajevo, 1972. D - 421).

The structure Bd3+Nge2 has its own idea: White intends to play e5, sacrificing the e-pawn in order to block the e-file and the benoni-diagonal a1-h8 - and then play f5 breaking up Black's entire K-side. The square e4 which has now been cleared will play an important role in the subsequent fight for the K-side - it will act as a focal point for White's pieces, especially his cavalry. Conferring the discussion of the pawn structure (p. v) it is reasonable to label this line the "Sealing-Sweeping Line" (the 2S-line) in order to describe White's basic aims (Hartston (1) calls it the "Penrose-Tal Line").

8. o-o (476)

Other possibilities (from dia.no.473):

- 1) 8...Na6 9.o-o Nc7 10.a4 o-o → A3, note to White's loth move, alt.5, p.212.
- 2) 8...a6 9.a4 Qc7 10.Bd2 Nbd7 11.Qcl h6 12.f4 o-o 13.o-o Kh7 14. h3 Re8 = (GOLDBLAT-UTJATSKIJ, Moscow, 1961. W - 422). Interesting fight until Black committed hara-kiri (26...Bc3?). Melanpenia.

After 8...o-o (dia.no.476) we have reached the basic position for the 2S-line.

White is able to control b5 for a long time to come, and with a N at g3 (Ne2-g3 is almost standard) the pawn at e4 will be sufficiently protected. All in all this appears to be a reasonable deployment of White's forces.

Also in Black's camp harmony prevails. His future plans of campaign are not very different from the usual ones. A characteristic of the position is that White's pressure against d6 is not present - the Nimzowitsch Pirouette is impossible. This fact should give Black the opportunity of manoeuvring more freely, i.e. without being hampered by the necessity of keeping an eye on the ram pawn (d6). Simultaneously it should be noticed that this freedom is partly balanced by the fact that Black's usual (tactical+positional) pressure against e4 is of no avail as mentioned above.

White has 2 basic plans at his disposal:

- p.200 A: 9.o-o (Standard)
p.220 B: 9.Bg5 (A Russian!? idea - possibly a very good one).

Less consistent attempts:

- 1) 9.Ng3 a6 10.a4 Ng4 11.f3 Ne5 12.Be2 Qh4!? 13.Be3 f5 14.f4 Nf7 15.o-o φ (NEI-BILEK, Asztalos Mem. Tourn., 1969. B - 423). The sally Qh4 - intending to utilize the slightly awkward position of Ng3 - is often strong in this line.
- 2) 9.f4 → a type of "Pawn Storm System", see "Rag and Bones", p.4.

- 2) 12.Bf4(?) is illogical. The position arose in GERUSEL-DUEBALL (Berlin, 1971. W - 432) after transposition. Bf4 is hardly good since it blocks the advance of the f-pawn (the helper). It is also difficult to increase the pressure against d6 when the piroouette is not at hand.

The "natural" 12...Re8 13.Ng3 (487) is too dangerous, e.g.:

In (5, p.205) Tal has given the following comment upon the move Re8: "Black's fault in these games consists in the move Re8, which is bad for the following reasons: First the move is loss of tempo since e4 is well protected by White's chosen deployment. Secondly because the Rook only formally counteracts the thrust e5, and thirdly - most important - the move leaves the square f7 undefended."

Apparently a Russian idea. White intends to weaken Black's K-flank in order to give the sealing-sweeping trick (the 2S-trick) added momentum (if Black plays h6 then his g-pawn is weakened in view of the thrust f2-f4-f5).

CHAPTER VIII

UHLMANN – AVERBAKH LINE

1.d4 Nf6 2.c4 c5 3.d5 e6 4.Nc3 ed 5.cd d6 6.Nf3 g6 7.Bg5

See diagram no. 523

The move 7.Bg5 introduces an independent and fashionable set-up. The basic idea is to tempt (force) Black to weaken his K-flank (h6+g5) in order to relieve the pin on Nf6. The price of inducing this weakness is the exchange of Bg5, and so White may easily find his skeleton in the center inflicted by melanpenia.

This disease is partly balanced by a tendency to leucopenia in Black's K-side, in particular the square f5 invites occupation by a white horseman (e.g. by the pirouettes Ng1-f3-d2-c4-e3-f5 or Nc3-d1-e3-f5). Naturally such manoeuvres are time-consuming, but the investment of tempi is normally not detrimental due to the static (ram) structure of the center.

Black's main trumps are the black squares in the center + the standard idea of Q-side play (b5 etc, i.e. duo action).

This mutual monochromy (p.v.) results in games of unique character - a kind of "double-chequers" with White working on the white squares and Black working on the black squares.

If Black, however, does not utilize the opportunity of exchanging the pertinent Bg5 then White may play Qd2 Ø Bh6 (i.e. exchanging the powerhouse Bg7) or Bg5-h4(f4)-g3, piling up pressure against Black's backbone d6, the ram pawn. The over-all impression is that the second possibility leaves Black stalling - and so he is well advised to accept the challenge of indulging in the struggle between leucopenia and melanpenia.

The continuation 7.Bg5 is advocated by W.Uhlmann, but since the idea is analogous to the basic idea in Averbakh Line (normally discussed within the King's Indian Defence) these lines are discussed under the same heading. In a way the two lines are only one system where a sensible differentiation between Uhlmann Line and Averbakh Line lies in the positioning of White's e-pawn: e3 is typical (but not necessary) for the Uhlmann Line, while e4 is typical (and necessary) for the Averbakh Line.

In conclusion it might be said that this Uhlmann-Averbakh Line is the most instructive example of the leucopenia-melanpenia conflict inside the MBO-complex.

White had a lot of trouble with his d-pawn. The similar position in Averbakh Line is in White's favour since his d-pawn is protected already.
 - b) 9...o-o?! (534):

 - b2) 10.Qd2?! Qa5 11.Rdl a6 φ (ANTOSCHIN-BILEK, USSR v. Hungary, 1967. W - 476). This game has a certain extravagant character, but it is given in order to show white prophylactic play in the d-file (Qd2+Rdl). Black's shortcoming stemmed from a complete paralyzation of his Q-flank.

The praiseworthy attempt of establishing a battery on the white squares consumes tempi. The idea of having WQ in front of WB is seen in a better version in Baturinskij-Sorokin, p.232.
 - b) 13.Qe4? Qe7 14.Nd2 Nf6 15.Qa4 Bd7 16.Bb5 a6 17.Bd7 Nd7 18.Qe4? (18.o-o o-o 19.Qe4 +=, Suetin) 18...b5! -+ (BELJAVSKIJ-SUETIN, USSR, 1970. B - 483).

 - a) 14...Qe7 15.Nc4 Ne5 16.Nb6 Rb8 17.a5 o-o 18.Nca4 Bf5 = (COBO-WADE, 16.01., Tel Aviv, 1964).

The B is needed to protect f5. Roughly, one might state that the discussion revolves around the squares e5, f5, and c4. These squares are in a certain sense corresponding.

.....

Slower methods are not dangerous, e.g. (from dia.no.543): 13.Be2 Nd7 14.o-o Nb6 15.Nb3? (15.Nc4 =) 15...Bd7 16.Rb1 Na4 17.Qc2 Nc3 18.bc b5 += (NEIKIRCH-IVKOV, 14.01., Leipzig, 1960. B - 486). White made no attempt to emphasize the leucopenia in Black's K-side structure.

13.

Qe7 (546)

13...Na6 is not consistent, e.g.: 14.Qd2 Nc7 15.a4 Qe7 16.Bd3 f5 17.Kf1 Bd7 18.Kg1 Rae8 19.g4 fg 20.Ne4 g3 21.Ng3 += (KETSLAKH-KARASEV, Leningrad Ch., 1964. W - 487). No doubt Black experiences greater problems after Na6 instead of Nd7. In this line it is urgent to consolidate the K-flank and the center prior to Q-side operations. To this end the N is needed on d7.

14. Bd3 (547)

An attempt to accentuate the leucopenia tendencies in Black's K-side.

The alternative (from dia.no.546) is 14.Be2 (548). It is remarkable that this position is analogous to the position after White's 14th move, Averbakh Line, p.286, the only difference being in the positioning of the e-pawns - e3 v. e4 in Averbakh Line. (See also introductory remarks, p.222). This intimate relation should justify the postulate of the necessity of simultaneously study of the Uhlmann Line and the Averbakh Line. In the Averbakh Line Pe4 adds to White's melanpenia symptoms, but is also aggressively placed, controlling f5 and being in readiness for the central advance e5. In Uhlmann Line the symptoms do not matter very much, but this virtue is partly balanced by the decrease in immient hostility of the pawn formation. Another earmark of the Uhlmann structure is the non-existence of the extended pirouette $Nf3-d2-c4-e3-f5$.

From diagram no.548:

- 1) 14...Rd8 (549):

 - 15.o-o Nd7 16.a4 Ne5 17.Ne5 (17.Na3 g4! paralyzes White's K-side) 17...Qe5 (17...Be5!?) 18.a5 Rb8 Ø (BOTVINNIK-TAL, World Championship Match, 2nd game, 1960. D - 488). Mutual monochromy prevented serious confrontation.

 - 36.Re2 Qa3 37.Rb2 Bb2 38.Nb2 Qa2 39.Kc1 Qa1 40.Kd2 Qb2 --
 - 36.Nb2 Qa3 37.Kc1 Qb2 38.Kd1 a4 -+
 One of the most interesting (fundamental) games inside the Uhlmann-Averbakh Line. Those who seek a more detailed analysis, see SvSSSR 12/1971.

2) 14...f5 is more logical (Tal).

An improvement is 17...Rfb8! 18.Qc7 Bc3 19.bc Nd5 20.Qd6 Qd6 21.Nd6 Nc3 with a position similar to that in the actual game - but with the important difference that Black retains his a-pawn and also an active Rb8.

8. o-o?! (582)

A "natural" move.

Black, however, does not take the salient features of the position into consideration. First White may transpose to Averbakh Line by means of 9.Be2, see below. Secondly White has the text move, which cedes White the assets of the Averbakh Line but excludes the drawbacks, in casu melanpenia (Black is unable to play Nf6-h5-g3). Of course, 8...o-o cannot be considered an outright blunder, but it deprives Black of his major field of counterplay, i.e. the opportunity of inflicting melanpenia in White's central structure.

9. Nd2! (583)

 3) 11...Nbd7 12.o-o h6 13.Bh4 Re8 → alt.1b, p.256.

No exaggeration to state that Black meets with almost insurmountable obstacles in this variation - the pressure against his ram pawn is steadily growing, and the pinning of Nf6 is most annoying.

Almost reflex.

Hartston (1) holds the opinion that White (from dia.no.592) should play 9.Nd2 (This possibility has to be compared to B33, alt.1, note to Black's 9th move, p.256 : 8...h6 9.Bh4 a6 10.Nd2) The strength of 9.Nd2 depends on the value of the thematic 9...b5!?, e.g.: 10.a4! b4(?) 11.Ncbl o-o 12.Bd3 Re8 13.o-o Qc7 14.Qc2 Nbd7 15.Nc4 Ng4 + = (Ø) (SCHISCHKIN-KONDRATYEV, Leningrad Spartakiad, 1963. Black has a satisfactory position, e.g.: 13.Qc2 (13.h3? Black's Q-side play prevailed. The initiative spread all over the board.

This variation is obviously a kind of "Combined Line", p.114. Consequently the plans must be studied in parallel. Here in B32 Black has the extra move h6 - not necessarily a virtue.

9. g5 (600)

Provoking the skirmishes.

Black weakens his K-flank and jeopardizes the right to castle. Leucopenia symptoms are looming up.

In White's camp melanpenia is not far away.

Roughly speaking the chances are about equal. It is poetical justice that diversion from the crucial line (text) entails grave trouble for the "offender": If Black should attempt to maintain the right of castling (9...a6) and simultaneously try to inflict melanpenia in White's structure he will get the worst of it (alt.1 below).

- 1) 10.Nd2! (602). Preventing Nh5. It is remarkable that White allows his opponent to establish the main duo b5+c5. The explanation is that Black will find it extremely difficult - if not impossible - to maintain the duo b5+c5. He must submit to the structure c5+b4, thus freeing the square c4 for a white piece, normally a horseman. The final result is that Black has obtained nothing but blocking the Q-side, while White has retained his important QB. This fact was pointed out by Bondarevskij & Spasskij, SB 1961. See also note to White's 9th move, B32, p.252., and B31, note to Black's 9th move, alt.3, p.248. The examples given there are actually facets of the same problem.

The enterprising alternative is 13.fg (616). Naturally the idea is o-o with pressure in the f-file. An additional earmark of 13.fg is that White's benoni majority loses its striking power. So much for generalities - examples from diagram no.616:

After 13.hg (text, see dia.no.615) the key position is obtained. "White's plan is a gradual advance of the king's side pawns combined with pressure on the white squares and in particular f5, where eventually he hopes to establish a knight. In contrast Black has very good play on the black squares and attacking possibilities on the queen's side. The prospects are about even" (1). Alternatives (from dia.no.615):

1) The other standard way of developing the QN (Nb8-a6-c7) is inadequate in this position. Controlling WSS (e5) is Black's paramount problem. GHEORGHIU-RIVERA (Students' Ol., 1966. The sequence of moves given here is rare. Normally the position on diagram no.640 arises from the King's Indian Defence proper, but it is clearly linked to MBO-formations. Diagram no.640 is the key position in this variation. Portisch has done a lot of work on White's part, so it seems reasonable to let the variation have his name.

Black's most promising plan of campaign: remove the benoni N.

Alternatives :

- 1) 13...Nbd7 14.h3 Rb8 15.Be3 b5 16.ab ab 17.Nd2 c4 18.Ra7 += (JUTTLER-TRINGOV, Students' World Ch., Reykjavik, 1957. B - 560).

Maybe one cannot blame 13...b6. But here it introduced an excessively passive set-up, which is hardly in harmony with the basic speed in the MBO.

After 13...Bg4 (See dia.no.646) we have reached the crucial point in this Portisch Variation. White's mobilization is complete, and he has prevented Black from establishing his main duo. On the other hand White is still far from the point of lever action in the center. First and foremost White must remove Bg4 and regroup his pieces to support the thrust f2-f4.

In Black's camp Nb8 is still in the stable and must be activated. Apart from that he has 2 problems to contend with:

- I) Preparing for b5 (the active plan).
- II) Controlling e5 (the passive plan). Prophylactic play in the e-file.

The following examples from master play should provide an idea of how these problems have been tackled until today.

 - b) 17...Rac8 18.Rael Ne5 19.Be2 Nfd7 20.Rcl Nd3 21.Bd3 cd 22.Qd3 Ne5 23.Qb1 Nc4 24.Bel Qe7 =φ (PORTISCH-GLIGORIC, Hungary v. Yugoslavia, Vrnjaka Banja, 1966. D - 563). Black's excellent piece play more than compensated his pawn deficit.

16. Re7 (649)

"In view of what happens Black should play 16...c4 (650) when the extra freedom of his pieces and pressure against the queen's side compensate for the loosening of his pawn structure. Gligoric considers the chances to be equal" (2, p.126). No practical examples on record, but Portisch-Gligoric and Uhlmann-Hartoch, given above, may serve as examples of how play may progress after the thrust c4.

17. Ra4!

White prevents c4, thus paralyzing Black's Q-flank. The alternative is 17.Rf1 Rae8 (651) (17...c4!?):
 1) 18.Ra4! h6 19.Rael Ne5 20.Be2 += (PANNO-LEE, 17.OI., Havanna, 1966. W - 565). With the Q-side blocked Black trained his guns on the K-side - but then his Q-side was pulverized!
 2) 18.Na4 Ne5 19.Be2 Ned7 20.Bd3 Ne5 21.Bf1 Ned7 22.f3?! (DONNER-CIRIC, 30.Blast Furnace Tourn., Beverwijk, 1968. B - 566). 22.f3 revealed White's intentions of playing for more than a draw - but his K-side melanpenia proved disastrous (f3+h3 is a most vulnerable structure).

17. Rae8 (652)
18. g3!

Probably the strongest continuation.

Other tries (from dia.no.652):

- 1) 18.Be2 h6 19.Kh2 g5 20.Bg4?! Ng4 21.hg Be5 22.g3 Nf6 += (PORTISCH-IVKOV, II Piatigorsky Cup, Santa Monica, 1966. D - 567). First 28...Bf4 would probably win for Black. Secondly he missed a number of winning lines in the endgame (Ivkov).
- 2) 18.b3?! (Fearing homework?) 18...c4 19.Nd1 Ne5 20.bc Ned7 =ø (PORTISCH-DUEBALL, Raach, FIDE zone, 1969. W - 568). In an equal position Black suddenly lost the thread (move 32 and onwards), possibly due to time pressure.

- 4) 18.Rf1 c4 19.g3 Ne5 20.Be2 Nfd7 21.Bg5 f6 22.Be3 += (PANNO-SIGURJONSSON, Caracas, 1970).

18. h6

In a peculiar way this position also arose in TORAN-SCHMIDT (19.OI., Siegen, 1970. D - 569), but with Black to move. The explanation is found in White's strange manoeuvre Bcl-g5-f4-d2, losing a tempo in comparison with the text Bcl-g5 -d2.

This variation demonstrates that Black after missing the opportunity of the exchange manoeuvre (h6+g5+Nh5+Ng3) experiences a lot of trouble with the pinning of Nf6 and/or the pressure against his ram pawn (d6).

Clearly this variation may arise from a galaxy of move orders, but the basic problem for Black is the same: ram problems and/or Q-side duo problems.

A less hackneyed try is 11...b5!? (670):

 - 12.Nd2! (671):

12. Nd2 (673)

Ng3

A little explored possibility is (from dia.no. 673) 12...Nf4!? (Worth consideration, Larsen) 13.Bf4 gf (674):

- 14.g3 Qf6 15.Nf3 Bh3 16.Rgl Na6 17.Qd2 fg 18.Rg3 Bd7 \emptyset (SZABO-VL.POPOV, Hungary v. Bulgaria, 1959. W - 590). Black overlooked the loss of 2N for a R.

- 12...Nf4 seems less promising than the text. The loosening of the pawn structure is not to be recommended.

13. hg (675)

No doubt - this is one of the key positions in the Averbakh Line. (In FARAGO-HALFDARNARSON, 16.Students' Ol., Dresden, 1969. W - 592 , a similar position was reached, but with an extra tempo for Black. White played Bcl-f4-g5-h4-g3).

The position on diagram is characterized through White's melanpenia being balanced by Black's leucopenia. The square f5 is a source of constant worry to Black. He should be ready to exchange a white N whenever it enters that square (f5), e.g. Nd2-c4-e3-f5 or Nc3-d1-e3-f5. The consequence of allowing White to plant a N on f5 is seen in Spasskij-Stein, p.284. Black's most promising plan is to continue development, retaining control of e5 (WSS).

13. Nd7 (676)

Important alternatives (from dia.no.675):

- 1) 13...f5 (677). Perhaps a trifle too aggressive, but difficult to refute. The move increases the leucopenia in Black's K-side, but on the other hand Black often obtains direct K-side threats.
 - a) 14.ef? (This allows Black to justify his ambitious idea)
 - 14...Bf5 (678):
 - a1) 15.o-o Nd7 16.Nc4 Ne5 (679):
 - a11) 17.Ne5 Be5 18.Bd3 Qf6 = (PFLEGER-HINDLE, Hastings, 1964/65) and (BOTEZ-STEIN, 16.Ol., Tel Aviv, 1964. D - 593). In the latter game Black had no problems.
 - a12) 17.Ne3 Bg6 18.Bh5 Bh7 19.Qd2 b5 20.Nb5 Rb8 21.Be2 g4 = (LANGEWEG-BILEK, 15.Ol., Varna, 1962. B - 594). A game displaying the assets of an early f5. Black's piece play is most attractive.
 - a2) 15.Nc4 a6 16.a4 Qe7 17.Nb6 Ra7 18.o-o Nd7 = (BILEK-EVANS, Amsterdam Interzonal, 1964. B - 595). Instructive to see how easily Black got a K-side attack rolling after 18.o-o.
 - a3) 15.Bg4!? Bg6 16.Be6 Kh7 17.Qg4 Qb6 = (BALASHOV-KEENE, Hastings, 1965/66. D - 596). It is well worth studying this Bg4-idea. Black was on the defensive all the time. Probably 15...Bg6 is faulty.
 - b) 14.Nc4! (680). The positional continuation. Now Black will be kept busy protecting his weaknesses.
 - b1) 14...Na6 (Since Nd7 is possible only after preparation Black's control of the central position - in casu e5 - is less firm than in text. Furthermore the N will find little to do from c7. It seems urgent to be able to challenge Nc4 by means of Nb8-d7-e5) 15.ef Bf5 16.o-o Nc7 (681):
 - b11) 17.Ne3 Qd7 (? Something better should be found) 18.g4 Bh7 19.Bd3! += (KAVALEK-TRINGOV, the Hague, 1966. W - 597). In fear of galloping leucopenia Black sacrificed the exchange.

x) Is the interpolation a6+a4 good for Black?. It allows White's QR to enter the fray via the 3rd or 4th rank.

y) Can White's K-flank stand the weakening f2-f4?

- 4) 13...Na6(?) 14.o-o Nc7 15.a4 f5 16.ef Bf5 += (BARCZAY-ESPIG, Raach, FIDE zone, 1969. B - 607). White played rather indifferently. Instead of opting for Q-side play he ought to continue (pursue) his leucopenia-theme on the K-side. Such strategy would also leave Nc7 misplaced. As played White lost his d-pawn, and Black's pieces sprang to life.

The most elastic move.

Now the fight flares up between "melanpenia, distinct but arrested" in White's camp (K-side only) and "leucopenia, distinct but arrested" in Black's camp (K-side only).

Alternatives (from dia.no. 691):

- 1) 14...Nf6 (694):

In (2, p.131) the authors state that "White had a complete bind on the position" after Black's 19th move. Therefore it is remarkable that Gligoric (CI II) does not indicate where White failed in exploiting the advantage. One must conclude that Black's position is fully defensible - or Gligoric holds back important information.

One of the oddest and most difficult variations inside the MBO-complex. The pawn structure gives rise to heavy-weight hand-to-hand encounters.

Last but not least: Not all transpositional possibilities are given, but the basic ideas should be clear.

8.Be2 o-o 9.o-o

See diagram no. 705 → 707

The main characteristic of this line is the slow build-up for both sides.
White first of all secures (safeguards) his position in the center - only then preparations are taken to establish the main duo.
Normally play develops in a clear cut way.

The "Solid Line" is in focus today - it leaves White with fair prospects for obtaining the upper hand without running too grave risks.

For ramifications from diagram no.705 , see flow chart p.294.

A futuristic idea is 7...Bg4!? (instead of 7...Bg7) (706):

- 1) 8.Be2 Bf3 9.Bf3 Nbd7 10.Bf4 a6 11.a4 Qb8 12.Qd2 Bg7 13.Bh6 o-o

14.Bg3 φ (WEXLER-BRONSTEIN, Mar-del-Plata, 1960. B - 627).
The idea of transferring BQ to b8 to support the ram pawn (d6) and to prepare for b5 is certainly remarkable.

Another futuristic idea is 8...Bg4, eg. 9.Qa4→D, alt.2, p.138.

Bg4 (708)

Probably this direct attempt is weaker than 9...a6 10.a4 Bg4, see B, p.298.

Ramifications after 9...Bg4 (from dia.no. 708):

1) 10.h3(!) Bf3 11.Bf3 (709):

a) 11...Nbd7 12.Bf4 Ne8 (710) (12...Ne5!?, SB 1957):

a1) 13.Qd2 a6 (711):

a11) 14.Bg5(!) Bf6 15.Bh6 Bg7 16.Bg5 Bf6 17.Bf6 N8f6 18. Rael += (GLIGORIC-MATULOVIC, Palma de Mallorca, 1967. W - 628). Impressive example of the strength of the white central pawn formation. White's sacrifice of the exchange was as strong as it was obvious: It dissolved the ram and Black was in no position to stem the onrush of the pawn roller.

a12) 14.Be2 b5 15.a4 b4 16.Nd1 Qe7 17.f3 += (HARTOCH-BROWNE, IBM Tourn., Amsterdam, 1972. D - 629). Blocking the Q-side left Black with a dull but solid position.

a2) 13.Be2 a6 14.a4 Qe7 15.Qc2 b6 16.Bh2 Nc7 17.f4 Rae8 φ (POLUGAJEVSKIJ-TOMSON, "Burevestnik" Ch., USSR, 1962. W - 630). Opening the a-file was poor judgement.

a3) 13.Rel a6 14.a4 Rc8 15.Qc2 c4 16.Bg4 Rc7 17.Bd7 Qd7 18. a5 Rc5 19.Qa4 Qe7 20.Qb4 Nf6 21.Qb6 Rd8 += (SANGUINETTI-MALICH, 18.OI., Lugano, 1968. W - 631). Black lost an apparently drawn ending.

Alt.lall renders 9...Bg4 suspicious!? White is a tempo up in comparison to B.

b) 11...a6 (712):

b1) 12.a4 → B, text, p.306.

b2) 12.Bf4! (713) φ 13.e5!. White is able to opt for a more aggressive position than he obtains in B. 12.Bf4 was investigated by Smislov, and his analysis was published in SB 1957:

b21) 12...b5 13.e5 de 14.d6 Ra7 15.Be5 +=

b22) 12...Qc7 13.e5 de 14.d6 +=

b23) 12...Qe7 13.e5 de 14.d6 Qe6 15.Rel Nbd7 16.Bb7 Rab8 17.Ba6 Rb2 18.Qd3 +=

In short: The duo lever e5 gives White the upper hand.

2) 10.Bf4 (714):

a) 10...Re8 (715):

a1) 11.Qc2 Na6 12.h3 Bf3 13.Bf3 Qb6 14.b3 Nd7 15.a3 Bd4 16. Rad1 Ne5 φ (BALASHOV-SAVON, 39.USSR Ch., 1971. B - 632). Black's idea of sacrificing the exchange in order to control the dark squares on the Q-side and in the center met with complete success. 18.Kh1? (Savon).

a2) 11.h3(!) (716):

a21) 11...Ne4? (This little combination is excellent in B due to the interpolation a6+a4. Here it is simply a mistake) 12.hg Bc3 13.Bb5! Bb2 +- (KORCHNOI-LUTIKOV, 26.USSR Ch., 1959. W - 633). Ten years later history repeats itself in SIRKIJA-WAHLBOM (Dresden, 1969. W - 634).

Bg4 (721)

This was the original way of playing in Solid Line.

Later 9...Re8 (E) came into fashion, but in recent years 10...Bg4 has had a renaissance, possibly due to dissatisfaction with Black's results in E, where especially Gligoric's discovery 11.f3 has given Black a head-ache.

The basic idea in 10...Bg4 is sound: Black intends to remove the Benoni N. A drawback is that the position later might be opened up and then White's 2B will gain strength.

Alternatives to 10...Bg4 are (from dia.no. 721):

The drawback of this type (for Black) is that White immediately gains control of the white squares on the K-side (the white-squared Bs are removed in an early phase).

b2) 12...Bf3 13.Bf3 (=, Gufeld, CI XIII) 13...Nbd7 14.Be2 Re8 15.f4 Qb6 16.Qc2 Qb4 17.Bf3 c4 \emptyset (ZAKHAROV-ZHIDKOV, USSR, 1972. B - 654). Impressive black Q-side play spreading to the center. In CI XIII Gufeld suggests 20.Kh1, 22. Kh2?!, and 24.Kh2 as improvements. But still Black would have excellent piece-coordination.

2) 11.Bf4 (734). This does not pose Black serious problems:

This variation has independent significance only if Black does not play Re8 "in the near future". After an early Re8 play normally transposes to E11, p.316, or E21, p.326.

See diagram no. 767

The move 9...Re8 introduces what appears to be the most debated variation inside the MBO-complex. Theory is still fluctuating, but what follows should present a fairly broad survey of present-day points of view.

White can protect Pe4 in two ways:

p.314 E1: 10.Qc2
Astonishing intricacies may arise from this variation, ultimately favouring White.
However, Black has solid alternatives.

p.326 E2: 10.Nd2
This move is logical - "stellungsgemäss"- the pirouette is begun and the helper Pf2 free to advance (slowly). Black has problems here, especially Gligoric's idea of 11.f3 has given Black a head-ache.

It should be mentioned that Gligoric prefers 10.Nd2, while Korchnoi (who after all is somebody, too) has a predilection for 10.Qc2. For ramifications after 9...Re8, see also FLOW CHART, p.294.

The position on diagram no.796 should be compared with diagram no. 675 from the Uhlmann-Averbakh Line. The pawn structures are in family - and so are the plans of campaign.

11. f3 (817)

Gligoric's favourite move. Due to his untiring willingness to play the white side it seems reasonable to let the variation have his name.

Judging from the results this pawn structure appears to be White's most promising set-up inside the Solid Line.

The philosophy behind 11.f3 is simple: White safeguards his center and under cover of the granite pawn chain g2+f3+e4+d5 he completes his development. Simultaneously control of the diagonal f1-a6 is maintained, thus making the realization of Black's Q-side ambitions more laborious.

Black's counter is normally the manoeuvre Nf6-d7 in order to be ready for Nd7-e5 to control c4, and for f7-f5 to stem the white center once it threatens to move. On the plus side Black can book certain melanenia symptoms in White's K-side due to 11.f3.

For ramifications after 11.f3, see FLOW CHART, p.294 , E2131-2135.

It might seem a little exaggerated to subdivide after 11.f3, but the future will surely reveal a host of games on the 11.f3-theme; thus it is convenient to sketch a framework now.

Black is a tempo down in comparison with E21312, p.348, and since Black's problems there are harsh they are hardly diminished by having a tempo less.

After 12.a4 (see dia.no.819) Black has to make up his mind:

Certainly this fantastic idea of sacrificing 3P will provoke a wealth of analysis. It is remarkable to see the excellent coordination of Black's men in contrast to White's huddled pieces. See comment p. 358, alt.2.

After the text (16...gf) Black is the happy owner of a weak f-pawn. White's plan of campaign is simple and straightforward: Pile up pressure against f5 and exploit the semi-open g-file. Black's future is dull indeed, one has the sneaking feeling that Black has been active in the wrong sector.

Rb8 (887)

A fundamental possibility.

Examples from diagram no. 887:

- 1) 12.Rel Nc7 13.a4 a6 (13...b6!?) 14.a5 Bd7 15.Nc4 Bb5 16.Bg5 = (GARCIA-SCHWEBER, 16.Ol., Tel Aviv, 1964. B - 8o5). A balanced game until White forgot about the combined threats against his e-pawn.
- 2) 12.Kh1 Nc7 13.a4 (888):
 - a) 13...b6 → E213111, p.334.
 - b) 13...a6 14.a5 Bd7 15.Nc4 Bb5 16.Bf4 += (WEXLER-FORINTOS, 16.Ol., Tel Aviv, 1964. W - 8o6). Nothing wrong with Black's handling of the opening phase, but the plan initiated by 17...Nh5+18...Be5 was clearly suspect.
- 3) 12.a4 Nb4 (?!) 12...Nc7) 13.Nc4 a6 14.a5 Nh5? 15.g4! Nf6 16.Bf4 Bf8 17.Qd2 Bg4? 18.fg Ne4 19.Qd1 +- (FURMAN-FILIPOVIC, Polanica Zdroj, 1967. W - 8o7).

11.

Bd7 (889)

The idea behind this move is not clear. Perhaps Black hopes for a quick b5. Since White's pieces are in position to prevent b5, however, Black's deployment will present a picture without harmony.

One example:

12.a4 Nh5 13.Nc4 f5 14.Bd3? (14.f4 +=) 14...Bd4 15.Be3 Nf4 16.Bd4 cd 17.Ne2 Nd3 18.Qd3 Nc5 19.Qa3 d3 φ (SMIRNOV-NEBOLSHIN, "RSFSR Ch., USSR, 1965. B - 8o8).

11.

Nh5 (890)

Possibly too hasty. FURMAN-ARTSUKEVICH (Leningrad Ch., 1964) ran:
12.Nc4 f5 13.g4! fg 14.fg Nf6 15.Bf4 += (+-)

Bg7 8.Be2 o-o 9.o-o Re8 10.Nd2 Na6

11. Bf3 (891)

Not posing Black any problems. The B only blocks the path of Pf2.
One example:
11...Rb8 12.a4 Nd7 13.Nc4 Ne5 14.Ne5 Be5 15.Be3 Nb4 = (ALBAREDA-J.LITTLEWOOD, Lausanne, 1963).

11. Ba6? (892)

It is not always advantageous to "burden" one's opponent with a doubled pawn. Here it is simply bad - Black obtains the 2B and an open b-file immediately.

One example:
11...ba 12.f3 Bd7 13.a4 Rb8 14.Nc4 Nh5 15.g4 (15.Nd6!?) 15...Bd4
16.Kg2 Rb4 17.Qd3 Qa5 with a promising position for Black (KRAIDMAN-KANKO, Students' Ol., 1955).

A little explored possibility. Hartston's (1) opinion is low, but more documentary material is needed.

This was Gligoric's choice against Matulovic (Palma Interzonal, 1970), and in his notes (CI X) he claims the move to be a novelty. That is not correct, see below.

This sequence is highly interesting since it leads to the same position as shown on dia. no.877 - but with the extra tempo Khl because of f2-f4 instead of f2-f3-f4. This extra move rules out Matulovic's 3P-sacrifice (see note to Black's 16th move, p.350) because of the absence of the pinning motif Bd4.
- 3) 12...Rb8 13.f4 (This is clearly a type of 4P-Attack, see alt.1a3, p.88) 13...a6 14.a5 Bd7 15.Bf3 Nb5 16.e5!? de 17.fe Re5 18.Nc4 Rf5 φ= (UFIMTSEV-TAL, "Spartakiad", USSR, 1967. B - 81o). Keres concludes that the whole affair is suspect for Black - but it should be playable in blitz-chess.

Appendix II

A summary of Shaposhnikov's and Judovich jr.'s article in "Shakhmatnij Bjulletin", 1958, p.5.

See diagram no.904, p.361, and comment, alt.1c, p.362.

The idea in this interesting variation is to transfer the QR to e7 to pile up pressure against White's center. But the exact sequence of moves is important: if Black plays Ra8-a7-e7 without the preparatory 9...Re8 10.Nd2 (or 9...a6 10.a4 Re8 11.Nd2) then White plays Bf4 and Nf3-d2-c4 attacking d6.

In Smislov-Ragozin (see p. 300) Black played 9...a6 10.a4 b6!? 11.Bf4 Ra7 12.Nd2 Re7 13.Bf3, and in view of the threat of Nc4 Black was forced to play 13...Ne8 14.Nc4 Qc7. Now White played the thematic 15.e5, but after 15...de 16.d6 Nd6 17.Nd5 Black sacrificed the Q and obtained sufficient compensation after 17...Nc4 18.Nc7 Rc7. Stronger is 15.Bg3 or 15.Rel, containing Black's counterplay and retaining the threat e4-e5.

If White, however, in answer to 9...Re8 continues 10.Qc2 (instead of 10.Nd2) then the idea of doubling the Rs in the e-file turns out to be inadequate: 10...a6 11.a4 b6 12.Bf4 Ra7 13.Nd2 Rae7 14.Bf3 Ø Nc4. Consequently this idea (Ra8-a7-e7) is adopted only after 9...Re8 10.Nd2. It enables Black to organize pressure against e4 and obtain fair tactical chances, utilizing White's difficulties in developing the Q-side forces.

After 10...a6 11.a4 b6 12.f4 Ra7 13.Bf3 Rae7 we have reached a position which is important for the evaluation of the entire variation: (927):

- x) 14.Nc4 Ne4 15.Ne4 Re4 16.Be4 Re4 17.Qb3 (17.Ne3? Bd4 18.Qf3 Qe8 19.Rel Bb7 +=, Aratovskij) 17...Bg4 (928):
 - x1) 18.Bd2 Be2 19.Rfc1 Nd7 20.Nd6 c4 21.Qg3? (21.Nc4 Nc5 22.Qb6 Bd4 23.Kh1 Qd5 24.Nd6! obliges Black to play 24...Nd3 25.Qd8 Kg7 26.Ne8 Re8 27.Qd5 Nf2 28.Kg1 Nh3 etc., or 23...Qb6 24.Nb6 Nd3 25.Rc8 Kg7 26.Bc3 Nf2) 21...Bd4 22.Kh1 Nf6 23.f5, and now Black might have obtained a strong attack after 23...Rg4 24.Qel Qd6 25.Qe2 Rh4 26.g3 (26.h3 Ng4) 26...Qg3 (RAGOZIN-ARATOVSKIJ, Kiev, 1950).

- y) 14.Rel b5! 15.ab ab 16.Nb5 Ba6 17.Nc3 Bd3 =Ø (ILIVITSKIJ-SHAPOSHNIKOV, Rostov-on-Don, USSR, 1954).
- z) 14.h3 b5! Ø (Aratovskij).
- v) 14.Qc2 b5! Ø (Aratovskij).
- w) 14.Ra3 Qc7 15.Kh1 (15.Rel Ø Nd2-c4+e5 then 15...c4 16.Kh1 Qc5! +=) 15...Nbd7 16.Rb3 c4 17.Rb4 b5! 18.ab ab 19.Rb5 Ba6, and the complications favour Black (LEVIT-GOLOVKO, USSR, 1953).
